

The Trump Administration is likely to consider reforms to FDA enforcement policy and the health claims approval process to disarm the FDA of power to censor truthful health information concerning the effects of nutrients on disease, enabling consumers to know at the point of sale precisely what nutrients can do to improve their health and longevity

Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. has explained on multiple occasions and in multiple ways the domination of FDA by Big Pharma in service to a globalist agenda of mass vaccination and reliance on unsafe drugs. With Kennedy assuming a prominent role in the creation of health policy during the Trump Administration, we will likely see imposition of changes in personnel, in policy, and in rules to end Big Pharma control over the FDA drug approval process and regulation of potentially competing therapeutic foods and dietary supplements

01

Healthier Americans?

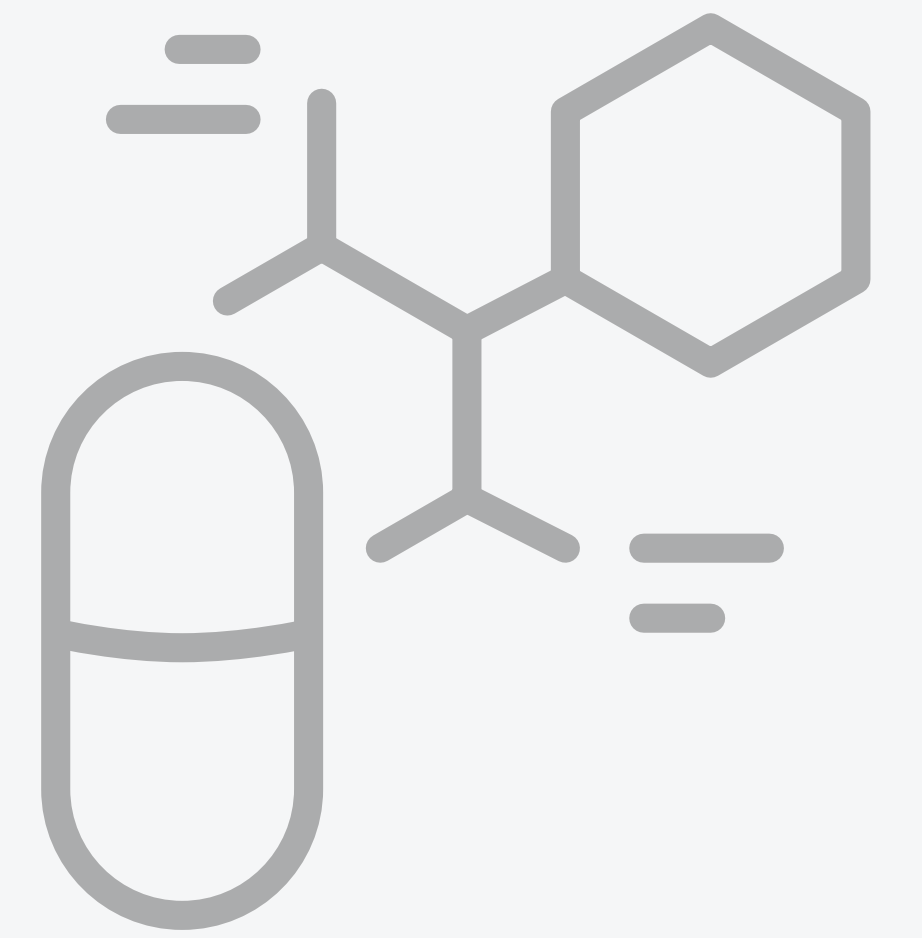

The Dept of Health & Human Services will likely be tasked with 'Making Americans Healthy Again', an approach that will be catalyzed if Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. is given a key role

02

Improve natural health product access?

A freer markets for dietary supplements and healthy foods seem likely, in which FDA and FTC powers are curtailed and interference by Big Pharma and Big Food lobbies are reduced

03

Better access to compounded medicines?

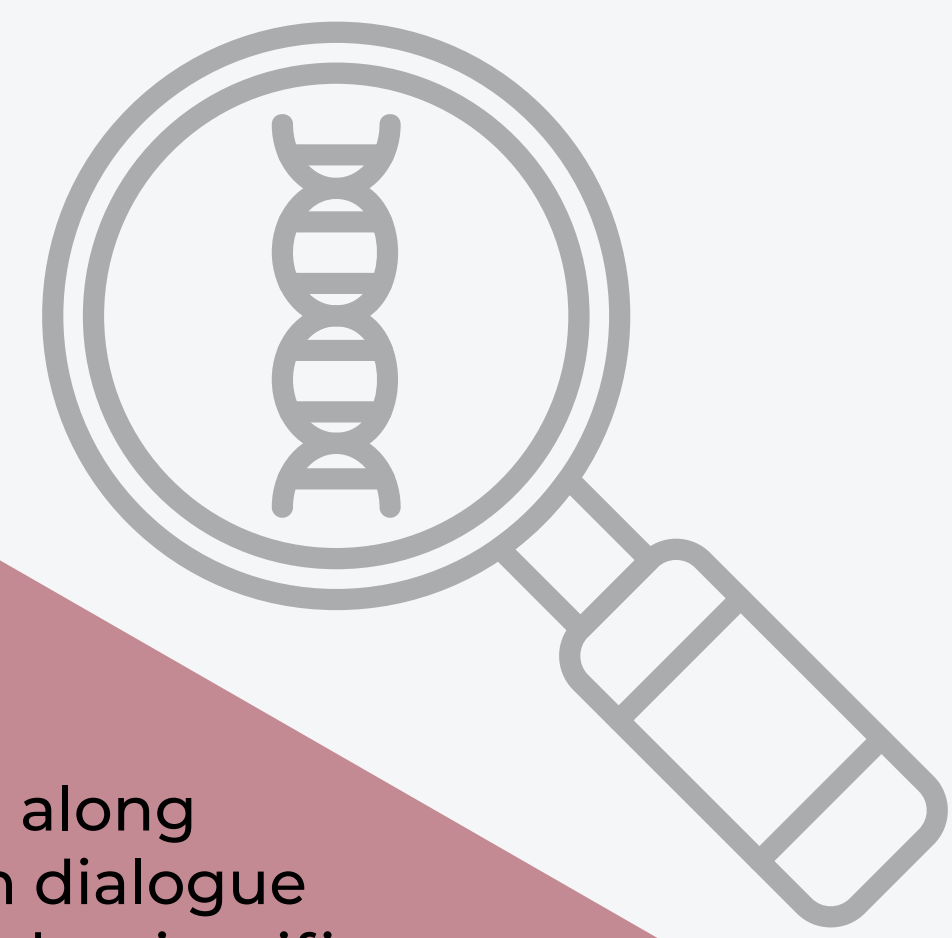

Probable reversal of the FDA's restrictive policy on compounded medicines such as bioidentical hormones and peptides, supported by new legislation that would facilitate personalized approaches and would allow physicians to practice 'best medicine'

04

Enhance innovation in healthcare?

Red tape and obstruction by the FDA in the conduct of human clinical trials is likely to be reduced to foster a climate of innovation in which products with low risk and high potential benefit can readily be evaluated by consenting patients

05

End the war on misinformation?

Coercion of Big Tech giants by the White House and 'censorship industrial complex' would stop and free speech will be facilitated along with a climate that encourages open dialogue and debate on matters of health in which scientific uncertainty is inevitable

06

Sideline World Health Organization (WHO)?

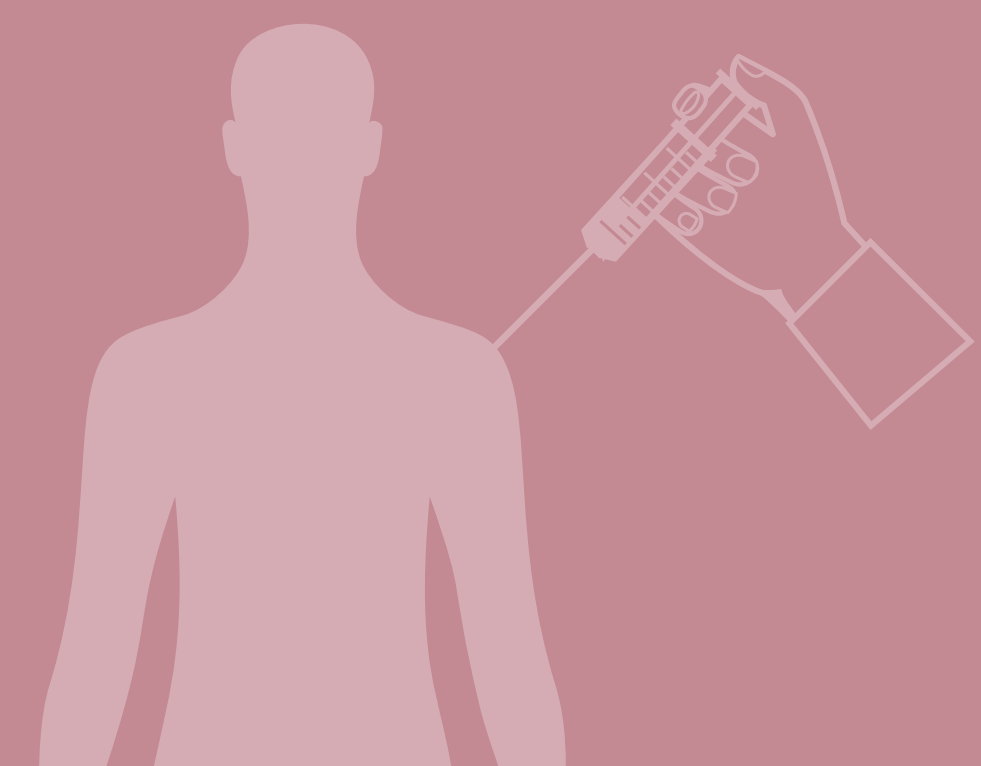

The Trump-Vance Administration will likely prioritize health policies that benefit Americans and do not threaten national sovereignty. Withdrawal from the WHO is also likely, eliminating threats on liberties and health choices imposed by the International Health Regulations and the 'Pandemic'

07

Major overhaul of vaccination policy?

Donald Trump has indicated that Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. would have a major influence on the development of vaccination policy for children and adults that would likely eliminate coercion and mandates, while supporting choice, and may involve review of manufacturers' indemnity granted since 1986

08

End mass medication of drinking water with fluoride?

Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. has indicated that a new Trump Administration would push to remove fluoride from drinking water very early, likely based on increasing evidence that health authorities have long overplayed the benefits in reducing tooth decay and underplayed harms

09

More government action on toxic chemicals?

While Republicans have traditionally favored limited government intervention in regulating toxic chemicals like PFAS, air pollutants and heavy metals, the involvement of figures like Robert F. Kennedy Jr. in health policy suggests this approach may shift under a Trump-Vance Administration

PFAS

12 THINGS
A TRUMP-VANCE
ADMINISTRATION
MIGHT DO TO IMPROVE
THE HEALTH OF AMERICANS

12 THINGS

A TRUMP-VANCE ADMINISTRATION MIGHT DO TO IMPROVE THE HEALTH OF AMERICANS

1. Healthier Americans?

The Dept of Health & Human Services will likely be tasked with 'Making Americans Healthy Again', an approach that will be catalyzed if Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. is given a key role

2. Improve natural health product access?

A freer markets for dietary supplements and healthy foods seem likely, in which FDA and FTC powers are curtailed and interference by Big Pharma and Big Food lobbies are reduced

3. Better access to compounded medicines?

Probable reversal of the FDA's restrictive policy on compounded medicines such as bioidentical hormones and peptides, supported by new legislation that would facilitate personalized approaches and would allow physicians to practice 'best medicine'

4. Enhance innovation in healthcare?

Red tape and obstruction by the FDA in the conduct of human clinical trials is likely to be reduced to foster a climate of innovation in which products with low risk and high potential benefit can readily be evaluated by consenting patients

5. End the war on misinformation?

Coercion of Big Tech giants by the White House and 'censorship industrial complex' would stop and free speech will be facilitated along with a climate that encourages open dialogue and debate on matters of health in which scientific uncertainty is inevitable

6. Sideline World Health Organization (WHO)?

The Trump-Vance Administration will likely prioritize health policies that benefit Americans and do not threaten national sovereignty. Withdrawal from the WHO is also likely, eliminating threats on liberties and health choices imposed by the International Health Regulations and the 'Pandemic'

7. Major overhaul of vaccination policy?

Donald Trump has indicated that Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. would have a major influence on the development of vaccination policy for children and adults that would likely eliminate coercion and mandates, while supporting choice

8. End mass medication of drinking water with fluoride?

Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. has indicated that a new Trump Administration would push to remove fluoride from drinking water very early, likely based on increasing evidence that health authorities have long overplayed the benefits in reducing tooth decay and underplayed harms

9. More government action on toxic chemicals?

While Republicans have traditionally favored limited government intervention in regulating toxic chemicals like PFAS, air pollutants and heavy metals, the involvement of figures like Robert F. Kennedy Jr. in health policy suggests this approach may shift under a Trump-Vance Administration.

10. Save Homeopathy?

The Biden Administration power grab that resulted in homeopathic drugs being deemed illegal without FDA pre-market drug approval is likely to be revisited, potentially resulting in a Trump Administration reversal of this policy and restoration of the legal force and effect of CPG 400.400.

11. Restore First Amendment protection for commercial health speech?

The Trump Administration is likely to consider reforms to FDA enforcement policy and the health claims approval process to disarm the FDA of power to censor truthful health information concerning the effects of nutrients on disease, enabling consumers to know at the point of sale precisely what nutrients can do to improve their health and longevity.

12. Eliminate undue influence of Big Pharma at the FDA?

Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. has explained on multiple occasions and in multiple ways the domination of FDA by Big Pharma in service to a globalist agenda of mass vaccination and reliance on unsafe drugs. With Kennedy assuming a prominent role in the creation of health policy during the Trump Administration, we will likely see imposition of changes in personnel, in policy, and in rules to end Big Pharma control over the FDA drug approval process and regulation of potentially competing therapeutic foods and dietary supplements.